"Of course he has given consideration to it, and the reason he does is because he's a very responsible public servant," said Victoria Clarke, Mr. Rumsfeld's former spokeswoman, who has talked to him regularly in recent days. "People with less responsibility would be thinking about themselves. He's not thinking about himself. What he thinks about constantly is what is best for the military and what is best for the country."

Mr. Rumsfeld himself said as much in public testimony to Congress last week. "If I felt I could not be effective, I'd resign in a minute,"
